

Which is better self-directed IRA or a traditional IRA?

Full disclosure – Central Ohio Real Estate Investment LLC uses self-directed IRA accounts to invest in real estate syndication investments. So obviously me and my clients have our opinion, but the truth is “It depends”.

Not all traditional IRA investments are good for all investors, and not all self-directed IRA investments are good for all investors. So, what does that mean to the investor? It means that there isn't a one size fits all when it comes to managing money. To quote one of my favorite movies Wall Street - “money never sleeps”. The investments are changing as well as your life. Any good money manager, financial planner, or investment manager will sit down, and get to know the investors level of experience, goals, planes, family status, needs and capability before they take a single dime for investments. If they don't how are they going to plan an investment portfolio that meets your needs? Central Ohio Real Estate Investment LLC not only makes sure we know our client's goals and needs up front; we follow up quarterly, semiannually, or annually as life changes.

The best advice anyone can give you or you can follow is consultant a professional that you trust in the assets class you would like to invest in. Make sure they can answer any and all questions you have in a way that makes you understand and feel comfortable with the next step. Before moving forward ask for references or track record of professional's past if it's a new relationship. Do your own on-line due diligence. Now a days any professional syndicator or investment firm will be on line. Check with BBB or cities chamber of commerce. Go on websites such as linkedin.com or Google the company's information. If you are local; drive by or visit the office, or cyber stalk the company on sites like Google Maps.

All of these tips when followed can help build a profitable relationship that can last for years. Although the keywords in the first sentence are “a professional that you trust”, but what if you don't know anyone? You get referrals from other investors that have worked with a syndicator or investment firm that specializes in the assets class you would like to invest in. Central Ohio Real Estate Investment LLC is happy to provide letters of indorsement from past clients on a request basis.

Like this article keeps reiterating “There is not a which is better answer” it depends on the investor. The first step in answering this question is to read the article on “Is a Self-Directed IRA the same as a traditional IRA?” that I wrote for Central Ohio Real Estate Investment LLC it can be found in the email I sent yesterday. Take the time to understand what is best for your situation, your needs, goals, wants, and capabilities.
